STEAMER SENATOR UNLAWFUL
ARREST CASE DISMISSED

After a partial trial lasting several days the suit brought by Liberato Gomez against Judge Whitney, Sheriff Jarrett and the members of the board of immigration, in which the plaintiff claimed damages because he was forcibly removed from the steamer Senator a year and a half ago, was dismissed, Judge Cooper granting the motion of the attorneys for the defense for a nonsuit as to all the parties defendant.

The complaint claimed that Judge Whitney exceeded his authority in issuing the order for the arrest of Gomez and the other Spaniards and Portuguese who had been recruited by the agents of the Alaska packers. To this claim the defense replied that, even if the judge did exceed his authority, he was not liable for damages, as, if this were the case, damage suits would be brought constantly against judges.

The point was argued nearly all day yesterday, the argument ending as outlined above. Attorney Ashford noted an exception and it is probable that an appeal will be taken to the supreme court.

SALLY IN OUR ALLEY.

By Henry Carey.
 Of all the girls that are so smart,
 There's none like pretty Sally;
 She is the darling of my heart,
 And she lives in our alley.
 There is no lady in the land
 Is half so sweet as Sally;
 She is the darling of my heart,
 And she lives in our alley.

Her father he makes cabbage nets,
 And through the streets does cry
 'em;
 Her mother she sells lace long
 To such as please to buy 'em;
 But sure such folks could ne'er be get

So sweet a girl as Sally;
 She is the darling of my heart,
 And she lives in our alley.
 When she is by, I leave my work,
 I love her so sincerely;
 My master comes like any Turk,
 And bangs me most severely;
 But let him bang his bellyful,
 I'll bear it all for Sally;
 She is the darling of my heart,
 And she lives in our alley.

Of all the days that's in the week
 I dearly love but one day—
 And that's the day that comes but twice
 A Saturday and Monday;
 For then I'm dressed all in my best
 To walk abroad with Sally;
 She is the darling of my heart,
 And she lives in our alley.

My master carries me to church,
 And often am I blamed
 Because I leave him in the lurch
 As soon as text is read;
 I leave the church in sermon time,
 And slink away to Sally;
 She is the darling of my heart,
 And she lives in our alley.

When Christmas comes about again,
 Oh, then I shall have money;
 I'll hand it up, and box it all,
 I'll give it to my honey;
 I would it were ten thousand pounds,
 I'd give it all to Sally;
 She is the darling of my heart,
 And she lives in our alley.

The good opinion you have of yourself will not pass you through the pearly gates.

One year after marriage a man can seldom offer a satisfactory explanation.

If, during courtship, a young man tells a girl that he's unworthy of her she doesn't believe it any more than he means it.

HARBOR BOARD
HOLDS MEETING

The board of harbor commissioners yesterday afternoon held a meeting at which financial and other matters were discussed. The closing of the contract for the Hilo wharf exhausted the board's funds, but Acting Governor Mott-Smith allowed sufficient from emergency funds to enable the board to keep up its routine work until it sets its share of the pending new loan.

The board accepted the deed to 1.30 acres of land on Maui as the approach to the new Kihel wharf, given by the H. P. Baldwin Estate. Ten dollars will be paid for the property. The plans for the wharf are ready and tenders for the construction of the wharf will be advertised for in a few days, to be opened late in July, when funds may be available.

The Hilo Boat Club protested against power sampans traveling full speed in the harbor. The harbormaster was instructed to formulate a rule to govern speed of vessels in the harbor, taking up the matter with Major Wooten of the army.

The Hilo Boat Club, through Joshua D. Tucker, commissioner of lands, asked for a lease of one of three sites on the Hilo shore line. The board had no power to grant leases, but recommended to the land commissioner that his department lease one of the sites for twenty years for boat house purposes.

The board disapproved of making any change in the location of the Inter-Island company's floating drydock. It is to occupy the Ewa end of the Queen street wharf slip.

OPERA HOUSE

There was a mere handful of people at the Opera House yesterday evening to listen to Wilson Fritch's interpretation and reading of Master Beek's Blue Bird; a scattered few who listened in respectful and appreciative silence as the reader partially unfolded to their gaze the true significance and meaning of the wonderful allegory.

Although individually encouraging, from point of numbers the audience was enough to dishearten any artist who had to view the rows upon rows of empty seats which mutely asserted the fact that the citizens of Honolulu would rather see an impossible cowboy hero rescued from the hands of a bloody band of Indians by a manly short-skirted young woman via the moving-picture route than listen to the lines of a play which has made thousands think and undoubtedly caused many to lead less selfish lives.

The reader himself was both eliminated and forgotten by the deep meaning hidden in every line of the allegory; so full of food for thought that the listener finds his mind wandering far away and is only brought back with a start as a new allegory is brought in for contemplation.

There are so many possible interpretations of the Blue Bird that it is hard to say just what each figure stands for, exactly what the dramatist meant in each instance. The theme is the quest for happiness, the two children of the wood-cutter signifying the endless and hopeful quest of mankind for happiness in which the search is prosecuted into the realms of darkness and far away places while the Blue Bird (Happiness) is really close at hand and consists in not looking for happiness but in trying to give it to others.

Mr. Fritch handles his subject well, without affectation or pedantry, and succeeds in tantalizing his audience with a realization of what it is missing by being unable to hear the drama unabridged.

The incoming racing fleet and had the yacht put in shape and the cruising sails taken off for the purpose of having the spars scraped and racing sails replaced.

Unfortunately both suits of sails were destroyed by the fire at Abram's place at the Peninsula a short time ago and the genial commodore was forced to abandon his very sporting project.
